SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—
Official inquiry into the crash of the Navy's pride, the U. S. S.
Macon, was to get under way here today.

Uncle Sam's warriors of the sea wanted to know why their dirigible, the world's greatest, suddenly zoomed into the Pacific off Point Sur, 110 miles south of here, with the loss of two lives and painful injuries to eight of the 81 crew members who were rescued in highly efficient operations of the fleet's cruisers.

As the survivors of the disaster which claimed the last of the navy's dirigibles, a $2,450,000 streamlined job, were landed here, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander-in-chief of the fleet, appointed his inquisi-torial body.

Probers Named
He named Rear Admiral O. G.
Murphy as president of the board,
with the following members: Capt.
Wilbur R. Van Auken, Captain Harry E. Shoemaker and Commander
C. L. Gatch, who will act as judge advocate.

The board will meet aboard the U.

And just to think, a year ago today, the temperature was sixteen below zero.

Mrs. Agnes Minnick of 44 West Neshannock avenue, New Williamton, is exhibiting a prize possession today, St. Valentine's day. It is a valentine she received when a little girl, 80 years ago. It has been kept in a remarkable state of preservation and is being viewed by many with interest today. The valentine was sent to her by her cousin, from Poughkeepsie, N. Y. It is a lacy affair, with a small mirror, hearts, etc., on the front, and the message inside, expressing the spirit of the day is written in ink by the sender.

There seemed to be quite a rush at the post office late yesterday as the valentine mailers were getting under the wire.

Workmen are doing a fine job of decorating the lobby of the new Federal building. It certainly makes a big change in the appearance of the interior of the building.

Telephone calls reached The News last night before the verdict in the Hauptmann case was announced, stating that announcement had been made over the radio that Hauptmann had been convicted and had been given a life sentence. At that time the judge had not yet entered the courtroom, according to the reports reaching The News over the special International News Service wire. A short time later the actual announcement of the verdict was made in the courtroom and showed that this premature announcement over the radio was wrong. Explanations are still being awaited by many radio listeners.

FIVE BALLOTS TAKEN BY HAUPTMANN JURY

By KENNETH T. DOWNS

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 14.—
It required five ballots, cast under electric tension, to seal the fate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, International News Service learned today.

Bitter argument, tears, semi-hysteria and exhaustion followed in rapid succession during the eleven hours and thirteen minutes it took the eight men and four women to reach a unanimous decision that Hauptmann was the slayer of Baby Lindbergh.

Three Hold Out For Mercy

Two women and one man held out for mercy—which would have meant life imprisonment for the former German machine-gunner, while nine voted his death on the first ballot. The women were Mrs.

Rosie Pill, the only grandmother on the jury, and Mrs. Verna Snyder, the gentle-looking No. 3 juror. The man was Robert Cravatt, the only bachelor on the jury.

After this ballot was taken a magnifying glass was requested by the jurors to study the handwriting exhibits, which an impressive corps of the nation's leading chirographers swore identified Hauptmann as the writer of the ransom notes. On the second ballot Mrs. Pill voted death for Hauptmann, making the vote ten to two.

A third ballot was taken and the vote was identical.
At this point, it was learned on

Counsel Chiefs Give Views Of Verdict

(International News Service)
FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 14.—
Here are the statements made by chiefs of the prosecution and defense immediately after Bruno Richard Hauptmann was sentenced to the electric chair for the murder of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel:
"We shall appeal. We shall go to the highest court in the land on this decision. This man cannot be guilty and he is not guilty. In 20 years of criminal practice I have never been so utterly dumfounded as I was when the jury returned their verdict to Justice Trenchard. We gave the court and the jury every iota of evidence we had. We went to every length to provide Richard Hauptmann with an adequate and complete defense. We had no funds, few friends and only a limited number of witnesses but an unlimited faith in the innocence of our client.
We did our best and every member of the defense counsel will continue to do their best. We believe there is a higher forum for Hauptmann and we shall seek it."

David T. Wilentz, attorney general:

"The tremendous responsibility imposed upon the Hunterdon county jury was shouldered without flinching. The nation is indebted to these courageous men and women.
The proper presentation of the case was due in the main to the work of the New Jersey state police.
District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of

FOLEY DECLARES
VERDICT PROPER

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—No statements were forthcoming today concerning the conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann from two of the most important figures in the famous case—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon.

Efforts were made to communicate with Col. Lindbergh at the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, in Englewood, N. J., but a member of the Morrow household declared the flyer would have nothing to say.
At his home in the Bronx, Dr.
Condon refused to see reporters.
Mrs. Condon, speaking in behalf of the veteran educator, said:
"We heard the verdict over the radio and we have no comment to make on it. The family feel we have been in the public eye long enough."

Samuel J. Foley, district attorney of the Bronx, who was in charge of the investigation that followed Hauptmann's arrest last September, issued the following statement:
"It is a perfectly proper verdict and it is entirely warranted by the evidence. I believe that any honest American jury could arrive at no other decision."

Acting Deputy Chief Inspector Bruckman, who was one of the police officers who arrested Hauptmann, said: "The verdict speaks for itself."

New York the other day about them not being able to get any snow shovellers on account of everybody on relief.
Well, I got a lot of letters explaining it. They say that if you are on relief and accept any work (even a day or so) that it knocks you off the relief rolls and you can't go back on. So all I know is just what I read in the letters.
We been unlucky with our dirigibles, but what makes it look so bad is we only have one at a time, and when we lose that, it makes us look 100 per cent inefficient. Maybe if we didn't have but one airplane at

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—
With America's future development of lighter-than-air craft hanging in the balance as a result of the Macon disaster, an aroused congressional sentiment today assured the most exhaustive aviation investigation undertaken in many years.

While senate and house naval affairs committee already had moved to make the inquiry, a dozen members were to introduce resolution calling for a special committee backed by ample funds to hire experts. The congressional inquiry will be independent of the navy's investigation.

Investigators, leaders said, will not only seek the cause of the Macon's plunge into the Pacific, but will en-brace airship building, possible sabotage and the entire naval aviation policy.

Backers of the giant airships, who regard them as the "eyes of the navy," were disheartened. Many members of the two navy committees wanted to go on with experiments, but it was conceded that dirigible construction will be halted possibly for quite some years.

Gen. Smedley Butler Says Dir-

Butler, scheduled to deliver an ad-that "it just folded up." The crash was not the fault of the sailors, But-

Dollar Day Will Continue Friday

It's an ill wind that gathers no moss, and it's a poor rain that doesn't help somebody. The rain of today might have made the streets tough walking but it did this thing, it carried the Dollar Day of fifty odd merchants over into Friday. The Dollar Day which was booked for today will continue through to Friday evening, all of which gives the thrifty shopper a break.
Maybe it's all for the best. There are so many stores offering bargains that an ordinary shopper couldn't get around to all of them with roller skates but an extra day does the trick.

After looking the weather forecast over today the merchants decided that the crowds wouldn't be what they should be and by ten o'clock this was proven. In order to let shoppers avail themselves of the bargains, the merchants decided unanimously to continue the Dollar Day through Friday, so if you didn't get down town today,
Friday is plenty of time.

New Wilmington Bank Depositors To Get Dividend

Additional 30 Per Cent To Be Paid By Receiver Is Announcement

FIFTY PER CENT
ALREADY PAID

Within the next six weeks the depositors of the old First National Bank of New Wilmington will receive an additional 30 per cent dividend, bringing their return up to 80 per cent of their deposits. A 50 per cent dividend was declared when the new bank took over part of the assets of the old bank.

R. H. Wilson, receiver for the First National Bank of New Wilmington, announced today that authorization had been received from the offices of J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of the currency, to pay the additional 30 per cent. This is made possible through the collections made since the receivership was declared and a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Initial Dividend Paid

On March 21, 1933, the First National Bank was placed under a conservator, and on December 1, 1933, an initial dividend of 50% was paid to the depositors. The bank has been operating under a receivership since December 20, 1933. This dividend of 30% will make a total of 80% in dividends paid to depositors, or approximately $700,000.00. The depositors of the old First National Bank will have cause for rejoicing over this announcement. It is very gratifying to all the depositors that the affairs of the bank are being gradually adjusted.

Dividend checks are now being prepared in the office of the resulting Finance Corporation.

Betty Gow Breaks Her Long Silence

Speaks Of Defense Counsel As

(International News Service)
ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Feb. 14.— Betty Gow broke silence today for the first time since she crossed the Atlantic to face accusation and receive her greatest tragedy. And the result was a curious mixture of joy and bitterness.

Interviewed at the Morrow home,
Betty blazed as she spoke of Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly...
"that Reilly person!"
"I hated Mr. Reilly," she said.
"And I feel vindicated because the jury believed me instead of that dreadful Reilly person."

"I'm glad the baby's death has been avenged," she added.
Asked whether she had any plans,
the pretty Scotch lassie whom Reilly accused of complicity in the kidnaping and murder of Baby Lindbergh revealed she had been offered her former job in the Lindbergh household. She said:
"I have been asked by Mrs. Lindbergh to take my position with her again. I'm undecided whether to go home first to England to see my mother and come back to work in the spring. I think I'll go home for a while, though. If I do, I'll sail next week."

guilty ones are the people who

Verdict Returned By Jury

FLEMINGTON, N. J.,
Feb. 14.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann "is a long way from execution," Edward J.
Reilly, the condemned man's chief counsel, declared in an interview today.

Reilly told International News Service he believed the appeals the defense will take from the verdict and the sentence of Hauptmann
"will take two years and run into the early part of 1937."

He expressed confidence that Hauptmann will not be electrocuted next month. After the jury last night found Hauptmann guilty of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, Justice Thomas W. Trenchard sentenced him to be executed during the week beginning March 18 next.

In State Of Collapse

Hauptmann, meanwhile, was in a state of near collapse in his cell in the Hunterdon county jail here.
Shortly after noon today Reilly and his co-counsel Lloyd Fisher and Egbert Rosecrans paid a visit to Hauptmann in the jail.

Hauptmann had spent a bad night. He collapsed when he was brought back to his cell from the courtroom and sank face downward on his cot and wept. He slept only fitfully during the night.

His lawyers today launched a movement for a "Hauptmann de-

SOME STATE CONSOLIDATIONS ARE PLANNED

Legislation Is Being Prepared

State Penal And Correctional Institutions Would Be Consolidated

MAY COMBINE POLICE FORCES

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent
HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—The Earle administration is planning consolidation of all state penal and correctional institutions under the Department of Justice, it was learned today.

Supervision of state penal institutions will be transferred from the Department of Welfare and combined with the state pardon and parole system under the attorney general. Such a change has been advocated by the State Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

Other changes in the administrative setup on Capitol Hill also are under consideration, but no decision has been reached. Among the subjects discussed were proposals to combine the state police and highway motor patrol and reorganize the State Insurance Department.

To Consolidate Activities
Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, at the direction of Governor George H. Earle, is preparing legislation for consolidation of the penal activities. Governor Earle favors the change as a means of providing more efficient control over criminals. Margiotti said:

"The Justice Department is where all state activities on crime and crime supervision should be centralized."

At present the Department of Welfare supervises the operation of the eastern and western penitentiaries with their branches at Graterford and Rockview respectively; the Pennsylvania Industrial School at Huntingdon, the State Industrial Home for Women at Uncasville, the Pennsylvania Correctional School at Morgantown and state-aided institutions at Glen Mills and Sleighton Farms. The Eastern penitentiary and its Graterford farm were recently the scene of costly riots.

Supervision at these institutions is exercised by the Bureau of Corrections. Factories at both state prisons and at Huntingdon are turning out products valued at $500,000 annually under supervision of a superintendent of prison industries.

Combination of state police and the motor patrol, the latter now under the Department of Revenue, was recommended in the report of the Sterling legislative committee, named to study the state government, but never accomplished.

Bills are before both the House and Senate to require that insurance commissioners have at least 10 years experience and to divide the department into sections to handle fire, life and casualty insurance separately. These measures are supported by the Republican legislative steering committee, which introduced them as part of the G. O. P. program.

LOSSES ON STOCK TRANS-ACTIONS

No gain or loss is recognized for the exchange of stock or securities in a corporation solely for stock or securities in another corporation in pursuance of a plan of reorganization to which both corporations are parties or as a result of the exchange of stock or securities in a corporation solely for stock or securities in the same corporation in connection with a recapitalization. Where money or other property is received along with such exchanges, no loss is recognized, although a taxable gain may result. The statute also prohibits the deduction of any loss from the sale or other disposition of stock or securities where the taxpayer, within a period of 30 days before or after the date of sale or other disposition, acquires or enters into a contract or option to acquire substantially identical stock or securities.

Two important changes are made by section 112 of the Revenue Act of 1934. Under section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1934 no taxable gain was recognized as having resulted to the recipient stockholders of a corporation from a distribution of stock or securities in such corporation or in another corporation, a party to a reorganization, without the surrender of the stock in respect of which the distribution was made. These provisions are entirely omitted from the Revenue Act of 1934, giving such distributions the status of dividend distributions paid in property.

The other important change is in the definition of the term "reorganization" as contained in section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1934. In section 112 (1) (A) of the Revenue Act of 1932 the term "reorganization" was defined to mean "a merger or consolidation (including the acquisition by one corporation of at least a majority of the voting stock or of another corporation, or substantially all the properties of another corporation)." The corresponding provisions of section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1934 define the term "reorganization" as: "(1) a statutory merger or consolidation, or (2) the acquisition by one corporation in exchange solely for all or a part of its voting stock, of at least 80 percentum of the voting stock and at least 80 percentum of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of another corporation; or of substantially all the properties of another corporation." The remaining provisions of section 112 (g) (1) are substantially the same as the provisions of section 112 (1) (B), (C) and (D) of the Revenue Act of 1932.

BOACAST OF FALSE VERDICT TO BE PROBED

A wait of 13 minutes ensued before the judge entered the courtroom and mounted his bench and the jury's verdict was announced. It was then at 10:45 p. m.—that a correction of the false radio report was broadcast.

The broadcasting chains announced that they had received the false report from the Press Radio News Bureau, which in turn announced that the erroneous flash had been given that bureau by the Associated Press.

A check of the International News Service report, sent instantaneously from the courtroom to scores of afternoon papers throughout the country holding open for extra editions, revealed that at 10:30 p. m. the news was flashed that the jury was entering the courtroom.

The news of Justice Trenchard's appearance was flashed at 10:44 p. m. and followed a moment later by the announcement that Hauptmann had been found guilty without any recommendation for mercy.

TO START OFFICIAL PROBE OF DISASTER TO AIRSHIP MACON

adjourn to a place of its own selection, probably the Sunnysvale air base as the officers and men who took the Macon on her last trek have been returned to their quarters around the huge hangar, 40 miles south of San Francisco.

Admiral Reeves instructed his board to interrogate all survivors in a diligent effort to discover what caused the crash—an interrogation which will furnish material for the Navy Department and congressional investigators and may determine the fate of dirigibles in the armed service of the United States.

Mystery In Disaster

Interviews with survivors developed the opinion sharp squalls of wind and rain, sweeping down from the Carmel Highlands, hit the Macon as she maneuvered with the fleet off the Monterey Coast, fouled her control gear, laid back her silver cover in huge ruts and finally, as she lurched and twisted out of control of the helmsman, swept the stern hull into the sea.

The other important change is in the definition of the term "reorganization" as contained in section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1934. In section 112 (1) (A) of the Revenue Act of 1932 the term "reorganization" was defined to mean "a merger or consolidation (including the acquisition by one corporation of at least a majority of the voting stock or of another corporation, or substantially all the properties of another corporation)." The corresponding provisions of section 112 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1934 define the term "reorganization" as:

"(1) a statutory merger or consolidation, or (2) the acquisition by one corporation in exchange solely for all or a part of its voting stock, of at least 80 percentum of the voting stock and at least 80 percentum of the total number of shares of all other classes of stock of another corporation; or of substantially all the properties of another corporation." The remaining provisions of section 112 (g) (1) are substantially the same as the provisions of section 112 (1) (B), (C) and (D) of the Revenue Act of 1932.

"I CANNOT BELIEVE IT" CRIES MOTHER

elderly women friends in her modest living room. A little coal fire crackled in the grate beneath two old-fashioned cupboards. Photographs of Bruno Richard and her other children looked down from the walls. A clock ticked monotonously.

Said He Was Innocent
Clenching and undenching her hands, Frau Hauptmann took little consolation in the assurance that the defense would carry the appeal to the highest courts.

"Richard always told me he was innocent," she revealed for the first time.

"I am sure Richard did not do what they said," she sobbed again. "He loved his little son Manfred so much he could never treat a child so badly. He would always have his own son in mind."

Frau Hauptmann was noticeably paler and the lines in her face had deepened through the anxious days of the trial.

"Do you believe for one moment," she cried, "that a mother does not suffer terrible hurt when she has to endure such a spectacle as to have her son dragged before a court and blamed by everybody?"

"It was enough to break my heart to follow that trial day by day. Obviously many people wanted to blame my son for this crime although he had done them no harm. 'No, no!' she repeated, 'I cannot believe it.'"

EXECUTION DATE FIXED BY COURT MARCH 18 WEEK

terized the death verdict against Hauptmann as "a great miscarriage of justice."

He said the appeals the defense will take will be based largely on the contention that Justice Trenchard was unfair and biased in his instructions to the jury.

Nerves Give Way.
Flemington, N. J., Feb. 14.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann—sentenced to die in the electric chair the week of March 18 next—was in a distraught state in his cell here today. His "iron" nerves finally gave way and he wept.

Hours after a jury of eight men and four women found him guilty of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, he lay face down on his cot sobbing and muttering phrases in German.

He did not quake during those tense and dramatic moments when the jury said "guilty." Nor when the judge pronounced the death sentence. He was calm, with the world spotlight upon him, he "looked it" like the soldier he once was. But, alone in his cell, with the vision of the electric chair haunting him, he broke down.

Hauptmann's counsel said they would appeal the verdict and sentence to the highest court in the land, if necessary. But for Hauptmann this is small solace. He has no confidence. He plainly sees the handwriting on the wall and it spells "death."

Strange Figure.

A strange figure this man Hauptmann was as he stood pale-faced and erect in the courtroom at 10:45 o'clock last night and heard himself sentenced to die a little over a month from now. That was "New Jersey justice," operating at full speed.

That scene in the courtroom when Hauptmann's doom was sealed will never be forgotten by eye-witnesses. It was packed with drama. It shook the nerves of all who saw it.

Hauptmann took one look. It seemed to be enough for him, too. For a fraction of a second an expression of fear swept his face. Then he stared straight ahead—and waited.

And what a wait it was. The minutes went by. The jury was in the box. The state police in their bright blue uniforms were stationed in strategic spots all over the courtroom. The reporters were ready to "flash" the verdict. The seconds seemed minutes. A dramatic hush pervaded the tiny courtroom.

Judge Ascents Bench.

Finally, the kindly-faced, distinguished looking Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, in his flowing black robes, ascended the bench. You could almost hear the ticking of the courtroom clock. Defense Attorney Lloyd Fisher gently placed a reassuring hand on Hauptmann's shoulder and whispered something in his ear. Hauptmann didn't budge. Nor did he answer Fisher.

Outside, the motion picture flames, illuminated the walls of the hall of records to the right of the courtroom. Troopers pulled down the shades. The hubbub of the crowd in the streets accentuated the weirdness of it all.

Justice Trenchard looked down from the bench and nodded to C. Lloyd Fell, the little gray-haired county clerk. Fell read the names of the jury. Each juror answered to his or her name. The voices of the men jurors were firm—unnaturally so, seemed—and the voices of the women were low and trembling.

The last name called, the jury rose in the box. The most dramatic moment of the long trial was at hand.

Had they reached a verdict? The clerk was asking this. They had. Who would speak for them? The foreman—Charles Walton, Sr., a machinist.

Verdict Is Guilty.
Fell turned to Walton and asked: "Mr. Foreman, what say you?"

"Guilty of murder in the first degree," said Foreman Walton.

11 hours and 13 minutes the jury had fought the battle over the evidence in a room not far from the courtroom itself and directly over the cell where Hauptmann sat on his bunk calmly smoking cigarettes. Suddenly the calm of the night was broken by the tolling of the bell in the courthouse cupola, informing the public that a verdict had been reached. Flares burst forth in the streets in the vicinity of the courthouse, lighting up the neighborhood. A huge throng—at least 5,000 persons—milled about and waited for the fateful news.

Hauptmann was marched into the courtroom at 10:30 o'clock. He was in irons, manacled to two of his nine guards. It was the first time such a precaution had been taken.

His face was pale, his eyes red-rimmed as he was escorted across the room to his seat, with the eyes of everybody in the courtroom glued upon him. He sat down stiffly, a bit awkwardly, as if the manacles annoyed him.

Life In Court.

At almost the same moment, Hauptmann's loyal wife, Anna, edged into a seat a short distance from him. She sat at him wanly.

Anna Hauptmann tried to look brave. She had a lot on her mind. There was her husband, and his plight. And two blocks distance, her 15-months' old son—swathed in liniments to ward off a cold—slept in a strange home, temporarily bereft of a mother's care.

you?" and each one answered "Guilty of murder—first degree."

From the press seats a mighty flurry of "flashes" on sheets of paper were sent back to the wire rooms, from which emanated the staccato clicking telegraph instruments.

Hauptmann sat there, like a sphinx. His face was pale yet impassive. The only sign of emotion he showed was the clutching of the arms of his chair. Two tiny red spots appeared behind his ears.

He did not look at his wife, whose chin sank gradually upon her chest. She was deathly pale and spectators feared she would slump from her chair. But she didn't.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz moved the sentence be imposed immediately.

Justice Trenchard remarked that this was a proper motion and ordered Hauptmann to stand up.

Hauptmann stood up. At that moment the prisoner justified the description of Wilentz that he was a "man of steel." There was no sign of fear on Hauptmann's face, no visible tremor to his body.

Given Sentence
"Bruno Richard Hauptmann," the benign-looking juror began, and he spoke the name softly, like a kind father, "You have been convicted of murder in the first degree. The sentence of the court is that you, said Bruno Richard Hauptmann, shall suffer death at the time and place and in the manner provided by law, and the court will hand the sheriff the warrant dated Monday, March 18, the week within which sentence must be executed."

Justice Trenchard made no mention of the electric chair, but everybody—Hauptmann included—knew what he meant.

Hauptmann turned his head slowly and cast a pathetic glance at his wife. She more than any one else had stood by him through thick and thin. His face had a death-like pallor. When he sat down, the springiness had gone from his well-knit frame. He dropped almost thud-like into his seat.

Mrs. Hauptmann's thin throat moved convulsively. She looked at him with tender eyes but his eyes moistened them. She bit her lips, trying hard not to break down—to show him she could be brave. Her shoulders, however, trembled violently. After a moment she lifted her head and faced the spectators almost defiantly. Gently, Defensive Attorney Fisher put his arm around her shoulder. He was visibly affected.

His eyes were as red as hers.

Hauptmann Removed To Jail
Justice Trenchard made a sign. Hauptmann's guards nudged him. He rose mechanically but he was handicapped by the manacles. He was escorted from the courtroom, surrounded by a phalanx of armed guards.

When he had disappeared through the door leading to the jail, Mrs. Hauptmann slumped in her chair. She cried softly, but she did not collapse nor make any demonstration. And then, in a little while, she went home to her baby.

There was nothing of triumph in the demeanor of the state's attorneys. Wilentz even came over and whispered to Mrs. Hauptmann. He told her he was sorry for her. She merely nodded.

There was nothing of jubilation in the attitude of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, who was present and heard the verdict. This was the climax of the greatest criminal case of his career.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the slain baby, was not in the courtroom when the verdict was rendered, neither was he at home when the news of the verdict was telephoned to the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, at Englewood.

The crowd outside the courthouse greeted the verdict rather calmly. There were some approving shouts but nothing in the nature of a demonstration occurred.

The jury was escorted from the courtroom by a detail of a dozen state troopers to the Union Hotel, where they were quartered for the night under guard. Not even their relatives were allowed to visit them.

Hauptmann, upon arriving at his brilliantly-lit cell suddenly slumped. He was half-lifted to his cot. He fell upon it, face down, and sobbed uncontrollably. Finally his sobs ceased. He asked for "strong coffee" and they gave it to him.

The "man of steel" had finally broken.

GARDEN CLUB HAS THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Enthusiasm over accomplishment in creating garden interest and definite results in garden betterment, generally, was evidenced at the February meeting of the North Beaver Garden club Wednesday evening, in observance of the third anniversary, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gardner, near Bethel.

There was a large attendance which enjoyed a delightful program under the direction of J. W. Fullerton, Mrs. Harry Bartsches and Mrs. A. J. McCalla. Mrs. J. W. Brewster outlined the major achievements of the club in an interesting talk. Two piano solos were contributed by Miss Anna Wilson and good reports of the recent farm show, in Harrisburg, were given by J. N. Fullerton, and George Clark who were among many from this locality who went down. A question box was conducted by Harry Bartsches.

Previous to the program, there was a business session in charge of the president, Mrs. J. W. Fullerton, when a committee was named for the flower show which will be held next fall. This consists of Mrs. William McCombs, Rev. George Neil, Mrs. George Clark. The show will be an outstanding feature of the new year's programs which were recently distributed by the committee in charge: Merle Leslie, Mrs. J. N. Fullerton and Mrs. A. J. McCalla.

Mrs. Howard Butler and Miss Frances Fullerton led the group in various games preceding lunch. The latter was a pleasing surprise as refreshments are not served customarily at meetings. However, last night's celebration of an anniversary was different and so a large birthday cake with 3 lighted candles was cut, and with this delicacy, hot coffee was an accompaniment. The March meeting will be held on the 13th, at the home of Mrs. Flossie Andrews, at Mt. Jackson.

BETTER HOMES TOPIC INTERESTING TALKS

Valuable suggestions on how to furnish a room, household hints and the various uses of the napkin were heard by members of the Cheerio club at their second meeting Wednesday evening, in the home of Mrs. James Geddes on East Washington street.

There are ten charter members, including Misses Dorothy Burdette, Alice Johnson, Viola Neyman, Dorothy Neyman, Mrs. James Geddes, Mrs. Harvey McKissick, Mrs. Edward Kelly, Mrs. Edward McKissick, Mrs. J. Arthur Moore, Mrs. Kenneth Owens. The officers are: Mrs. E. L. McKissick, president; Mrs. Kenneth Owens, secretary.

Valentine Party.

Arrangements have been completed for the Valentine party which will be held this evening, at 8 o'clock, in the basement at St. Vitus church, by the Children of Mary Sodality. Augmenting the luncheon there was a display of beautiful quilts in charge of Mrs. C. H. Fischer and Mrs. Ray Rhodes, and many exclamations of delight were heard as the women viewed the exquisite hand work on these, some of them being nearly a century old, while others were just from the needles of the quilters.

The entertainment following luncheon included a group of readings by Elizabeth Milholland and an amusing play by students of the senior high school, with Joe Fisher as the student coach. Those presenting "The First Meal" were Mildred Carson, Viola Dufford, Jean Casselman, Bob Brown, Helen Bowman and Bill Greer.

Roberta Elder played many piano numbers during the serving of the luncheon.

Mrs. William Cosel, president of the council, presided over the awarding of three lovely cakes, which were won by Mrs. M. Abramowitz of Titusville, Mrs. M. Hirsch and Mrs. M. Schoenberg. The door prize of the evening went to Mrs. Harry Pittoff.

JAMESON HOSPITAL NURSES HAVE PARTY

"Hearts and Flowers" always remind one of St. Valentine's day and such a perfect setting was found at the Nurses Home of the Jameson Memorial Hospital last evening when the student nurses entertained informally at a Valentine dance, an annual event, that is much looked forward to on their February calendar of social activities.

Decorations so appropriate to Valentine day, were used in a novel arrangement in the spacious ballroom, adding a festive air. Much attention was attracted to the "giant" heart pierced with a gold arrow, and especially impressive was the "Moonlight Waltz" in which all participated, to melodious tunes provided by a popular dance orchestra.

Hostesses for the evening, included Roberta Speer, Marian Jackson, and Margaret Brown, each performing their duties to perfection. Also refreshments were served, this being supervised by Blanche Benick, Eleanor Gibson, Mary McClelland, the appointments used further suggesting the approaching holiday.

Mingled with the girls were members of the faculty, doctors and their wives, who were special guests of the evening. Approximately eighty or more, shared the evening's festivities.

Credit is due those mentioned, also, the decorating committee, comprising Elizabeth Jean Banks, Tyrus Heminger, Gladys McNeese, Rebecca Anderson and Mary McClelland; the music committee, Maxine Craig and Ruth Clark and the financial committee, Mrs. Thelma Morgan, Kathryn Melvin and Vera McCoy, each contributing to the ultimate success of the event.

Teachers Entertained

Twenty guests, comprising members of the William Miller Bible class and the Women's Missionary society of the Mt. Jackson church, held a joint party Wednesday evening at the home of one of their number, Mrs. Jennie Sample, at Mt. Jackson.

The affair was in the nature of a farewell to Mrs. Sample, who will leave the near future to Cleveland. The guest of honor was completely surprised when the group arrived, early in the evening, but quickly making the group feel at home, she proved a pleasing hostess by providing games for entertainment. Featuring the delightful evening was a handkerchief shower.

McGEEVY-COLLEY MARRIAGE QUIET

At a very quiet ceremony Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the parsonage of the Third U. P. church, Miss Helen McGreevy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGreevy, of 248 Fern street, was united in marriage to Harry J. Colley, son of Mrs. Sophie Colley, of 1309 North Mercer street.

Rev. S. B. Copeland performed the service and there were no attendants. The bride is identified with the J. C. Penney company as cashier and the groom is employed by the city, being one of the city firemen located at the South Jefferson St. station.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Colley have a wide circle of friends interested in their happiness.

MULLENTOWNERS AT Y. W. C. A. TONIGHT

Mullementowners are planning to have a high time tonight at the Valentine party which has been planned for the Y. W. C. A. at 8 o'clock.

A splendid entertainment has been planned for the evening with Dan Reebie in charge. He has been capably assisted in arranging the affair by Pearl Johns White and Marie Wells Phillips and of course Herb McIlvenny has had a say too. It promises to be one of the biggest events listed for Valentine Day.

Off Hand Bridge.

Miss Helen Carpenter welcomed the Off Hand Bridge club to her home on Kerr street Wednesday evening. Misses Jane Horchler and Jane Davis were the fortunate high score holders, while the guest favor was presented to Miss Claire Critchlow, who with Miss Lois Smith was a visitor. Miss Frances Dean was admitted as a new member.

A daintily appointed Valentine luncheon was served at the small tables, the hostess having for her aide, her sister Virginia.

There will not be another meeting until three weeks, when Miss Agnes Schuller of West Washington street will receive the club.

Farewell Party.

Misses Winifred Hickling and Bettie Jayne Kline entertained a group of young friends Wednesday evening in the home of the latter, North Mercer street, as a farewell courtesy to George Bashor, who will return this week to his home in Akron, O., after attending senior high school here.

Music and dancing featured the evening, with the hostesses serving refreshments. Betty Protzman and Verna Fredericks of Pittsburgh were out of town guests.

Birthday Surprise

As a birthday surprise to Mrs. John Bromer, Newport, her class members of the Wampum Methodist church school, and neighbors came to her home Wednesday evening, and after a period of games and music, they presented her with lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. James Tebay, Mrs. Will Winnell, Mrs. George Bromer and Mrs. Ralph Bromer.

Mrs. F. W. Freed of New Castle was an out of town guest.

Kensington Event

In the Winslow avenue home of Mrs. J. V. Bowman Wednesday afternoon, the N. H. B. Kensington was delightfully entertained. Busy fingers fashioned dainty bits of needlework, while the women talked. Later the hostess and Mrs. Bert McKibben served lunch.

In two weeks, the group will meet with Mrs. Clyde Griffith, of Highland avenue.

John Tasota, of Bessemer, has been discharged from treatment at the Jameson Memorial hospital, where he has been a patient.

DISH GARDENS FORM ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY

The members of the East Side Garden club showed their ingenuity as builders of gardens Wednesday afternoon when they assembled at the home of Mrs. Laura Wallace, 1023 Adams street, for the monthly meeting, as many beautiful dish gardens were brought for display; there were Japanese gardens, Dutch gardens, English gardens, Hanging gardens and just gardens, each one bringing out the individuality of the women planting them.

A lovely garden formed the centerpiece on the luncheon table, with the appointments suggestive of the Valentine season. A menu of delicious luncheon dishes was served cafeteria style. Mrs. S. D. Pearson, Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad and Miss Della Glenn were special guests.

Concluding luncheon, Owen P. Fox, naturalist, was introduced and he talked most interestingly to the women on "Trees", offering them much enlightening information. Mrs. S. D. Pearson spoke briefly on Federation work and Mrs. W. C. Eckenroad talked on furthering the interests of the club.

Mrs. Fred Remley reported on the Thaddeus Stevens school project, which will be an event of March, when funds will be raised for beautifying the school grounds.

Further details were discussed for the county meeting April 4. March 13 the club will meet at the home of Mrs. J. Albert Wilson, Morton street.

MANY WOMEN SEW AT N. C. HOSPITAL

There was a good turnout at the meeting of the New Castle Hospital Emergency club Wednesday afternoon at the hospital, with Mrs. Margaret Heaney and Mrs. Elizabeth O'Donnell filling the role of hostesses.

Sewing for the institution kept the women busy for several hours. At the business session, plans were made to have a tureen dinner on Washington's birthday at the home of Mrs. John Griffith, 117 Richelieu avenue. The affair will be at 6 o'clock with the hours following, socially informal.

For the next regular club session at the hospital, on March 13, the hostesses will be Mrs. Dan Sullivan and Mrs. Mary Travers.

Open Door Class

Members of the Open Door class of the Third United Presbyterian church will meet Friday evening with Mrs. Mildred Bixler, 1028 East Washington street, for the monthly business and social session.

Who's The Harmonica Champ Of New Castle?

Who is the harmonica champion of New Castle? Is he a student in the Ben Franklin Junior High School, the Washington Junior High School, does he live in Croton or Mahoningtown or the South Side? For a long time Speer Marquis, manager of the Regent Theater, has wondered about these questions and now he has determined to settle them.

The Regent Theater is sponsoring a harmonica contest among the boys and girls of the schools of New Castle, the contests to be staged on three successive Friday nights, beginning Friday, Feb. 22, and continuing the next two Friday nights.

MR. MICAWBER'S BUDGET

MY other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen pounds six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds, aught and six, result misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—in shore you are forever flooded. As I am!"

Mr. Micawber may not have been the ideal among financial advisers, and he had not even the redeeming feature of practicing what he preached. But his advice to David was sound, and put with an expression and brevity which belied his general reputation for loquacity as completely as its substance contradicted his complete and permanent improvidence. It is an admonition to thrift in the manner of Benjamin Franklin.

May we apply Mr. Micawber's reasoning to government finances, as earnestly advocated by the New Deal government? Annual income four billion, annual expenditure eight billion, result—well, it will be at least a fair degree of misery for some future generations of taxpayers.

Those who chart the course of government spending have found more in Mr. Micawber's life to emulate than they find acceptable in what was probably the only evidence he ever gave of a sound belief in living within one's income.

GOVERNOR EARLE'S STUPENDOUS BUDGET

Analyzing the stupendous budget submitted by Governor Earle to the Pennsylvania State Legislature, and the additional tax plans suggested to raise the huge sum, the Philadelphia Inquirer says:

"The most serious crisis in the history of this Commonwealth." Such is Governor Earle's description of the existing situation. To meet it he calls for appropriations aggregating almost half a billion dollars. Including a deficit of nearly $50,000,000, as of May 31 next, and $120,000,000 for unemployment relief during the two fiscal years to follow, he figures that $355,656,253 must come out of the general fund. In addition he estimates that there will be collected and expended $141,470,469 from the motor license, fish, game, Banking Department and State Farm Products Show funds, making a grand total of $497,126,724.

With these special funds we need not disturb ourselves, since they have long been in operation. We build highways and repair roads with the receipts from motor licenses, for instance. What directly interests the taxpayer—and interests him in a large way—is the demand which the governor makes for $203,000,000 to be raised through new and increased taxation. It is stupendous and without precedent. While he is satisfied that no item on his taxable list can be eliminated or reduced, Mr. Earle reminds the legislature that the responsibility is on its shoulders and that if it can find other methods that are preferable he will be glad to consider them.

Doubtless efforts to do so will be attempted. In any event bitter controversy can not be avoided. The governor spurns any suggestion of a general sales tax "because it is in effect a 'sock-the-poor' tax." It is creditable to the governor that he will have nothing to do with a gross income tax, since "it would work hardship on thousands of Pennsylvania businesses and industries operating on a small margin of profit." But he has no hesitation in clapping a flat tax of 6 per cent on corporate net income, which would be a severe blow to struggling industries, and he would bring every manufacturing plant under a five-mill capital stock tax.

Movement to obtain lower rates from public utilities has gained headway. Gradually they have been coming down. But Mr. Earle hurls an obstacle in this pathway of progression. He would levy the five-mill stock tax on utilities and subject them to a 2 per cent tax on gross receipts. He would also collect one-half mill per kilowatt hour on all electricity. He insists that these taxes shall not be passed along to the consumer. But that would be for the Public Service Commission to determine after hearings.

Cigarettes, tobacco, gasoline come in for taxation. The Federal Government now takes 10 per cent of the price of admission to amusements. Mr. Earle would take another 10 per cent. One item on his list is a tax on out-of-state motor trucks crossing the Pennsylvania border. A good idea, could it be made workable. Unfortunately its practicability is doubtful. There would immediately be retaliation.

Aside from revenue raising, the governor evidently is seeking something of the autocratic authority enjoyed by President Roosevelt. He wants the legislature to appropriate in bulk for state and state-aided institutions, leaving it for him to make the allocations. His argument is that there should be a thorough investigation of the efficiency of these institutions. Like the schemes turned out on paper by many men of many minds in Washington, the theory has an attractive surface appearance, but what is beneath that surface? It would place a powerful political weapon in the hands of the governor, easily available did he wish to use it.

We are inclined to think that decided opposition to this plan will develop at Harrisburg. Direct appropriations, which have heretofore been made, would not prevent a careful survey of the institutions by any commission that the governor saw fit to appoint. As for the budget message as a whole, it must be rather startling to the legislators. It presents a problem that is intricate and which requires the most careful consideration and discussion.

All you must do to live longer is quit everything that makes you want to live longer.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

A SAVING DISPOSITION

A teacher in a grade school in Harlem, New York's negro section, felt sorry for a small dusky boy pupil who had long hair, like a girl's, carefully braided and bound tight to his head by a wide elastic band.

The boy suffered so much from the torment of his classmates that the teacher sent a note to his mother. The mother appeared in school next day. She was respectful to the teacher, but insisted that she could not cut the boy's hair for another month.

This only increased curiosity of the teacher who asked why she had to wait a month to cut the little fellow's hair.

"Cause that's how long it will take to grow me a switch," the mother replied.

MYSTERY STORY

I'm reading a mystery story and I can't guess the end.

Two men are kidnaped. . . . Four or five men and women are lying around dead in various alleys, gutters and vacant rooms. An enormous ransom is demanded. Half a dozen suspects might be guilty. Clues lead to everyone of them, but every clue may be false. The police are baffled. The "drag-net" brings in nothing but stray scraps of meaningless human riff-raff. . . . The story has developed into a silent tussle between the author and me. His task is to tell the story so cleverly that, in the end, it will seem logical and satisfying, and that I shall have no right to say, "You cheated! You didn't give me any inkling that He might have done it. That's not fair!" . . . My task is to guess the answer some pages before the end, but not so soon that I lose respect for the author and interest in his tale.

I'm right in the middle of the mystery. I ought to be profoundly involved in the adventures of this fictional crew. I ought to be—

But I'm not! My mind wanders. My attention collapses. I'm a solemn fellow and I really don't care what happens to these people of the author's imagination. . . . What is one mystery among so many? Why should I bother my head about this mad muddle of paper and ink when there are so many other mysteries in the world? When I can walk a block and rub shoulders with a dozen stories as strange, more indecipherable than this? Touch joy, misery, bewilderment, madness, boredom, wisdom and folly. See them pass in human guise, stumble into them, say I'm sorry, observe the infinite variety of the expressions that show upon the faces of mysterious human beings.

There they are, so close, so far away. So common and so rare. And beyond my feeble understanding.

I shall go back to my silly little book with its man-made puzzles and confusions, with its neat conclusion, its explanation on Page 297. . . . And when I have turned the last page I shall forget it entirely, but I shall not be forgetting those other mystery tales that pass so casually on the street.

RASH DECISIONS COMMAND LITTLE RESPECT

You are prone to ridicule the slow thinker. He irritates you, and you make no effort to cover your displeasure.

You consider your brain to be more active than his.

It may be more active, but less dependable.

You are so quick that your judgment is faulty.

You are precipitate, unstable and, therefore, slightly unbalanced.

Not out of your head at all, but rash in your decisions.

Thus your counsel is not worth much.

You speak before you have given enough consideration to the matter at hand and often find yourself in hot water.

Your friends realize this more than you do.

And you wonder why they pay so little heed to your statements.

Hold your tongue and count before you render snap judgment and perhaps you may be able to command attention for your ideas.

Think twice, even though your answer is not given sooner than the slow thinker.

Avoid conditions that interfere with and thwart the few plans you have made for yourself.

Just Folks

VALENTINE'S DAY

Said I to the clerk with that grin of mine:

"I want an old-fashioned valentine. A big one, which cupids and hearts adorn."

The kind they made before you were born.

With a lacy front that lifts up and shows

A mossy bank where the violet grows.

With a couple of doves on a tree branch there.

Looking down on a fondly embracing pair

And a mushy verse in letters of gold All gracefully flourished, embossed and scrolled

With the words "I love you," so plain that she

Can read them, and know that they come from me

Wherever her glasses may chance to be."

But the clerk, who was young, looked up and said:

"Why don't you send her a book instead.

Or a bottle of scent or a pair of shoes.

Or anything else which she can use?"

I lost my temper and went away. But all that the clerk in the store would say

Was: "Why don't you send her an easy chair

Or a rug for the floor or slippers to wear?"

But I wanted an old-fashioned valentine

Like the one that I sent her in ninety-nine

And at last I found it, but all she said

When that mushy "I love you" verse she'd read

Was: "Why didn't you buy me silk hose instead?"

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:34. Sun rises tomorrow 6:54.

Nature is indeed a wonderful thing. A million years ago she didn't know we were going to wear spectacles, yet look where she placed our ears and nose.

"Nearly all insects undergo a remarkable change during their lifetime," the East Side man read to his wife. "Yes," came the snappy retort, "they most generally turn into worms." Wonder what she meant?

People must inherit a memory of famine days. Why else would they feel apologetic when they drop in at meal time?

Some women find that by staying away from bridge games they get far more slams.

A New York state senator would compel all students attending state-aided colleges or schools take an oath of allegiance to the constitution. That ought to put a crimp in the Communists who go to school just to stir up trouble.

A friend is ashamed to keep the $2.50 he borrowed, but not the $2.50 book.

The old-fashioned woman who used to get a kick out of a game of drop the handkerchief, now has a daughter who is captain of the girl's boxing team and smokes cigarettes.

See in the paper that recently, not far from this county, a shoe salesman's auto was robbed of three hundred and fifty shoes which he had left in sample cases in the rumble seat. Unless the thief is an old-legged he pulled a boner. The shoes were all for the right foot.

An east side man who lives near the court house says that after looking over the court news from term to term, he is still convinced that honesty is the best policy, but thanks there are entirely too many folks who are well satisfied with much less than the best.

Americanism: Forever getting in trouble by allowing some group too much power; trying to mend matters by giving the power to another group.

Bad people are those whose badness isn't like ours.

The trouble with a lot of fellows is that the things that they learn by experience are the things that they ought not to know.

A Shenango township teacher wrote a fond mother saying her son was plenty bright, but the most mischievous boy in the room, and added, "What shall I do?" The mother wrote back, "Do as you like, I'm having troubles of my own with his dad."

Many people of this town who scatter their bread upon the waters seem to expect that it will come back buttered.

Money isn't everything, of course, but you never saw a cop clubbing a million dollars.

But the final proof of friendship is to keep on liking a man in spite of his good fortune.

Even a thin woman is far too fat to see through.

HENPECKED
A young man who wished to get married wrote to his father, asking his advice. He received the following reply:

"My dear son, your mother and I would like to see you happily married. She tells me to point out the many advantages—cozy fireside chair, slippers, pipe, etc., with your darling wife beside you. I am proud to know, my boy, that you have decided to settle down."

"P. S.—Your mother has just left the room. Keep single, you idiot!—Father."

It's just as well that daughter doesn't marry the kind of fellow you prefer. You'd feel inferior with a he angel in the house.

The world's prime optimist is a Washington county woman, who at the age of 102 has just applied for naturalization. She will have to wait two years before she can get her final papers. Maybe she is figuring on running for some kind of office. At that she would be as good as some office holders we have had in this county in times gone by.

If only those who hate war would also hate the kind of folk talk that encourages it.

Maybe you wouldn't be willing to pay a cent to hear some of the speeches some of our congressmen make, but you do just the same. They are all included in the Congressional Record, which costs $45 per page to print. A long-winded two-page speech therefore costs the good citizens of this country $90, and you pay for it, whether you like it or not. So far, the printing of the Congressional Record has cost $2,900 per day.

A smart girl is the kind who knows how to refuse a kiss, without actually being deprived of one.

Miss Jeannette Rankin, first woman to serve in the United States Congress, favors a bill which would make it compulsory for every congressman who votes for war to shoulder a gun and help fight it. That's the nearest thing to peace we have heard of yet.

The boy who used to take advantage of a girl's innocence was considered a cad—now he's an optimist.

But you don't lose all of your friends when you succeed. Half of them stick until you fail.

Darn the things that aren't any of our business. They cause most of the world's worrying.

Cowboy songs are popular again, and almost everybody sings them except cowboys.

The West Virginia legislature is considering the establishment of a home for incurables as a consequence of prohibition repeal. They would use the liquor tax to keep up the home, much the same as Pennsylvania uses it to pay pensions. It's a great game, this taxing of liquor to help along with social welfare work.

Pigs are not as dumb as they look, according to scientist, but it's a matter of common knowledge that no matter how hard you try to teach them good manners, they always make hogs of themselves.

Silence may not be the best defense, but every married man knows that it is absolutely the most annoying.

The new bonds which the government is going to sell are called "baby bonds" because it will take ten years to grow up. A $100 bond will be sold for $75 to $78, but you will have to cradle it for ten years before it is ready to wean at $100.

We suggest a new word for the dictionary, "Probitis", and we'd define it as the disposition of a political party in power to investigate everything that has been done by the party which preceded it. What this country needs is less investigating and more constructive action.

Firing men above 45 is a good plan if the business needs good legs more than good sense.

Down in Rochester, Pa. the borough council is considering an ordinance requiring movers and haulers to file a notice with the boro secretary prior to moving a family into or out of the boro.

Owners of property and business men are backing the project. It is said that a lot of strangers are moving in from Ohio and West Virginia, because they can get more relief funds in Pennsylvania.

A contemporary recently wrote, "Nobody expects Huey Long to engage in any real fights." No, not as long as he can have his hired toughs do his body-thumping for him.

The old fashioned girl blushed when she was embarrassed, but the modern miss is terribly embarrassed when she blushes.

It's surprising what some women can coax out of their husbands without even half crying.

Ignorance is the stepmother of most arguments, unless it might be just a little knowledge.

THE REASON
He: Why do you call me "Pill-grim?"
She: Because every time you call you make a little progress.

The supervisor of reindeer in Alaska draws a salary of $3,800 per year. This may be money well spent, but we were just wondering how a reindeer is supervised.

He: Nobody is a good loser. He just acts that way to get part of the praise that belongs to the winner.

But if the idle rich are worthless and ornery, why plan to make everybody idle and rich.

Isn't it nice that our principles always fit and approve the thing that helps our pocketbooks?

Why don't the "puzzle solvers" who wrack their brains with crosswords, switch to economics? If there's anything that needs bright minds just now it's the financial situation. Nobody seems to know anything about our monetary system, but the fellows one meets on the street, and it takes them too long to tell it. For instance if the gold content of the dollar is decreased by one-third, and a pound of bologna increased by one-fourth how many dozen eggs will a hen lay in a year if she goes back to the gold standard of 1926.

Man thinks the dog the smartest of animals because the dog thinks man a god.

A holding company is a kind of charity. It covers a multitude of sins.

We never hate a man because we envy him. We just envy him and then find something in him to hate.

Maybe you have noticed it, but it frequently happens that the black sheep of a family is a blonde.

About the only thing the farmer can raise at a profit is his voice.

Manish attire doesn't fool you in winter. A man has to wear four more layers.

But you aren't doing a nation any good if you persuade it to hate war without persuading the others.

Maybe not; but a statesman in Europe who had $4,800,000,000 to spend would feel like a dictator.

Everybody nates the privileged class except those who still have hopes of joining it.

The only thing that irritates acquaintances more than telling them your troubles is telling them your triumphs.

You see, if the earth didn't revolve, one side would be day all the time. And nobody on that side would ever repeat.

Funny land! A man can't old enough for the supreme court or the presidency until he's so old that no business concern would hire him.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 14.—Cleveland is the home town of the chief ex-officio adviser of President Roosevelt—Raymond Moley. Moley now lives in New York, where he is editor of Today magazine.

It is Moley who is taking up the cudgel against the American Federation of Labor. And it is to Moley to whom President Roosevelt listens attentively.

Moley contends that the American Federation of Labor has considered itself above the government in the dispute over the automobile code and collective bargaining elections in the auto industry. In brief, Moley intimates that the A. F. of L. will not play unless it has matters its own way, and thus it tries to dictate to the president, to the government.

Another man close to the president, who once represented, as an attorney, the great railroad brotherhood, whose headquarters are in Cleveland, has said much the same as Moley. This man, Donald Richberg, is a reviled man now in labor circles.

President Roosevelt's chat with President Green and others of the A. F. of L. is not likely to subside the controversy, in the opinion of observers here.

It is too vital. There is too much at stake.

Besides, a few corporations also have defied the government on collective bargaining and other NRA matters.

ANOTHER VIEW

A frequent visitor to Cleveland, Louis Adamo, whose book on Yugoslavia, "The Native's Return," became an international favorite, has been making a survey (as a liberal writer) of labor conditions in Detroit.

He writes that there is not likely to be a strike. Plants are busy—but there still are approximately 250,000 persons on relief in Detroit.

Plants are busy—but labor conditions are not bright.

Girls and women are being trained to operate machines. They displace men. Men are more likely to join unions.

And recruiting agents are scouring southern states where "labor" is cheap. This labor is being shipped into Detroit. The living conditions of the imported men are lower. They have not been "poisoned" by union ideas.

Adamo does not think much of the A. F. of L. Here is a question from his observations:

"There is but one union in the automobile industry of any consequence, and this one of no great consequence—the Mechanics' Educational Society of America, an independent organization essentially interested only in the 'aristocracy' of automotive labor, the tool-and-die men. The A. F. of L. momentarily is embarking on an 'organization' campaign, but anyone who knows anything in Detroit knows that the campaign is only a lot of empty notion, that in all probability the organizations are closer to the brain-guys of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce than they are to organized workers. A number of federal unions have been formed in the past year, but none have any numerical or other strength, while scores of plants have large unions under 'safe leadership'."

GREEN TO VISIT
Aamic continues:
"In mid-February the kingpin of American labor, William Green, is expected to visit automobile centers; the occasion doubtless will be marked by the customary geysers of blarney and bluff which have marked the A. F. of L. campaign so far. . . . Its immediate motive is merely to prevent the appearance of some new organization which eventually might succeed in unionizing the industry and then possibly become a rival of the A. F. of L. in other fields."

"The Communist party in Detroit has a large apparatus, but owing to the Communists' serious tactical blunders in the past it is totally isolated from the masses of workers and therefore of no immediate importance."

"The American Workers' party, now the Workers' Party of the United States, whose tactics were so successful in Toledo last year, is just beginning to get a foothold in Detroit, but is practically incapable of developing any real power during 1935'."

New Castle Folks Enjoying Florida

In a letter to The News, A. S. McKay, of St. Cloud, Fla., writes of the activities of those from New Castle and vicinity, who are wintering in Florida.

His letter follows:
Just a few lines to tell you how some of the folks from the old town and surroundings are enjoying themselves in the sunny south. We have had it a little cooler this winter than usual, but have not seen any snow yet. The weather is getting nice now and warming up some, so guess our cool weather is over. We need rain badly now as it is getting quite dry.

The New Castle folks are having a good time, fishing and sightseeing, and there is plenty of both in Florida. On January 29 we drove to a place called Conoe Creek, about 12 miles from St. Cloud, a sand road all the way and some of it is real sand and as dry as powder, but we have no trouble going right through. One of the party, who was not used to anything but concrete and Pinchot roads had a little trouble steering his car through, as the roads are very crooked through the sand, but he had no trouble on the return trip, as he had mastered the art of driving through sand by this time.

The party consisted of the following people: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooper, of Slippery Rock, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Yoho, New Castle, Mr. and Mrs. U. D. McCandless, of Leesburg, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wimer, New Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips, of New Wilmington and their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Grosscup, of Baltimore; Miss Sara Williams, of East Palestine, O.; Miss Viola Comstock, of New Castle, and A. S. McKay.

Canoe Creek is a small stream that winds through the prairie and is deep in places and fishing can be done from bank where there is nice short grass and no weeds or brush, as the place is a cattle ranch and the cattle keep the grass eaten down, so it makes it a very pleasant place to fish from. The fish were not biting extra good, but, never the less, when the time came to prepare dinner, Mr. Cooper and I started dressing fish.

After getting a good fire going to fry the fish and boil coffee, Mrs. Phillips chanced to be the champion fisherman of the day catching 14 fish, so therefore she was tendered the job of frying the fish, which was certainly done in a manner that convinced all that she was an old hand at the job. The same can be said of Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Grosscup as coffee makers. We spread the table clothes on that and it was a fine table to gather around. There were many good things on the table besides fish and there was plenty of that, talk about fish eaters, we sure had them in that bunch. Several plates of fish were consumed in short order, and I guess they all enjoyed it from the way they expressed themselves. It was a fine day, just cool enough to be pleasant, all had a good mess of fish to take home which was caught in the afternoon. All started for home in good time feeling they had a good days sport, and that we could make a return trip soon.

We had a very enjoyable gathering together on Tuesday evening, February 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper. It was an oyster supper, in honor of Mrs. Kate Humphreys, who had a birthday at this time, and also was leaving for the north on Thursday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. McCandless, Mr. and Mrs. Yoho, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Wimer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Grosscup, Miss Sara Williams, Miss Viola Comstock, Chester Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Slaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Small, Frank Small,

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Reider, Miss Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Humphreys. All had a very enjoyable time. The evening was spent in story telling, speaking and singing. We were very glad to have with us joining our party, Mr. and Mrs. Reider of New Castle, also Miss Phillips, who is a nurse in one of the large institutions in Tennessee. She got a leave of absence for a few days and came here to spend these few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Phillips. Mrs. Humphreys made the trip back north with Mr. and Mrs. McCandless, who were leaving for their home in Leesburg, going by auto.

The Yohos and Wimers are putting in their time now fishing, as the perch are biting now and there are some big catches made. Some are coming in with over a hundred for one days fishing. There is only a certain time in the year that the perch will bite and that time does not last long, so the people make good use of that time. It is great sport even if they are not so large. They will weight from one half to two and a half pounds, and are certainly fine eating.

I am planning to take the Phillips family and Reider families out for some bass fishing the first of the week. I have a boat on one of the lakes. I run it with a motor so we can go without the work of having to row the boat. Mr. Reider is some fisherman and is very anxious to show his skill and I am just as anxious to see him. Mr. Phillips does not say much as to how he will handle the big ones, but I think he will let Mrs. Phillips handle them for him.

No doubt they will all have some good fish stories to tell when they get back home. We hope so at least. We would like very much to have many more of the New Castle people with us to enjoy some of the sports. We would do the best we could to help them and show them a good time. We hope by another year, we will have them with us. With good wishes to all our friends, we remain, yours truly,

A. S. MCKAY.

Mitchell's Hearing Occurs Next Monday

James Mitchell, alias "Thin Dime," charged with felonious assault and battery with intent to kill by a jury of Police John P. Haven, was held in the county jail today for a hearing next Monday before Alderman Wallace J. Ewing.

The charge was placed following the shooting of Mitchell's wife, now in New Castle hospital. Mitchell claims it was accidental.

ONE CAR MISSING, ANOTHER RECOVERED

John Dawson has reported to police the theft of a Chevrolet coach, carrying Pennsylvania license 7P-005 from near the Johnson Bronze plant. Police are searching for the car.

STEALS 60 GALLONS OF OIL FROM ROOF

City police were informed yesterday that someone had got on the roof of the Pennzoil Gasoline station, South Jefferson street, and stole 60 gallons of oil.

Edith McBride Dexter, state health officer, Harrisburg has notified Dr. W. L. Steen, city health officer that all utensils used in restaurants and in places where beer and liquor are sold must be washed in hot water and soap each time they are used. Dr. Steen said it was the first order from the new state health official.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy whenever we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

Probst, the first Lock Haven policeman to die in line of duty, during a robbery attempt on the night of Feb. 22. A jury of twelve men in the Clinton county court last night returned a verdict of first degree murder with a recommendation of mercy after deliberating nine hours and ten minutes. Defense counsel A. Death in the electric chair was demanded by the commonwealth while the defense pleaded for acquittal on the contention that a confession from Mayo was obtained by Duress.

Picket Killed In Mine Riot

First Fatal Violence Of Insurgent Hard Coal Strike, Reported Today

(International News Service)
WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 14.—One picket was killed and another critically wounded today as the first fatal violence occurred in the insurgent strike called at operations of the Glen Alden Coal company by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, a new union.

Frank Petroski, Larksville, met instant death near the Boston Colliery of the Hudson Coal company at Larksville, and Tony Letosh was critically wounded, as they sought to stop workers enroute to the Woodward Colliery of the Glen Alden company at Edwardsville. Letosh was taken to the Nesbit Memorial hospital in Kingston.

Shot In Chest
Petroski was killed by a single shot in the chest and Letosh was wounded by a bullet which entered his back and emerged at the abdomen. No other violence occurred as the pickets and workers met, according to police. Only two shots were fired, both bullets finding their mark.

Letosh said the assailants appeared to be father and son. The younger man, after the shooting, turned to the other, according to Letosh, and said:

"Come on dad, I've got him."

congregating in knots nearby in the hope of catching a glimpse of Mrs. Hauptmann or the baby.

Mrs. Hauptmann's plans were uncertain. But it was expected that late today she would arrange to take the baby back to the Bronx, to be cared for temporarily by relatives and friends. Mrs. Hauptmann, it was understood, will then arrange for living quarters at Trenton, to be near her husband when he is transferred to state prison to await execution.

Not until the last dread minute did the courage which has carried her through her racking ordeal give way.

Pale and worn, she slipped into court a few minutes before the jury filed in to speak her husband's doom.

Eagerly she leaned toward Hauptmann.

"Are you all right, Richard?" she asked, her voice quivering with anxiety.

"Mustn't Break Down"

She leaned back in her chair at a whispered reassurance.

Then the eight men and four women filed in. Mrs. Hauptmann watched them with fierce intensity, seeking to read the riddle of life and death in their averted eyes and faces.

C. Lloyd Fisher, of defense counsel, came to her, put an arm over her shoulder.

"You mustn't give away," he said, soothingly. "We will take care of everything. You mustn't break down."

She nodded, tried to smile.

"I will try," she said vigorously. "Then came the blow which sent her hopes crashing. Mrs. Hauptmann sat as one stunned, fought back the tears. Her face was a mask of pain but from her came no audible indication of her agony.

Through the reading of the verdict and Judge Trenchard's imposition of sentence she sat immobile, her head slightly bowed.

When Hauptmann was led out, she looked up eagerly. But no word passed between them. She looked at her husband, his face set and slightly glowing.

He half nodded as he walked past. And then came Mrs. Hauptmann's only break.

The fourth ballot was recorded. The count was eleven to one. Mrs. Verna Snyder, tears streaming down her face, agreed with the ten others—guilty as charged, which meant death under the New Jersey statutes.

Cravat, bespectacled CCC camp educational adviser, was the lone holdout against the death verdict.

The deliberations had assumed the aspects of a siege when, at 10:28 p. m., Constable Odden Baggs brought the message that Justice Thomas W. Trenchard intended to leave for Trenton and the jury would be locked up until 10 a. m. today unless a verdict was forthcoming very shortly.

Six minutes later Hauptmann's doom was pronounced in the tiny jury room behind the courtroom where the "trial of the century" began January 1.

Circulation At Public Library Shows Decline

Slight Drop In Number Of Books Issued Viewed As Healthy Sign By Librarian

ANNUAL REPORT GIVEN TRUSTEES

While the report of Miss Alice M. Sterling, librarian, which was submitted to the board of trustees of the library at their recent annual meeting, shows that the circulation of the library decreased for the first time in the history of the institution, it is viewed as a healthy sign that the depression is ending.

The summary of the year's activities at the library is contained in the following resume by Miss Sterling in the 24th annual report of the library:

"The phenomenal increase in circulation enjoyed by all public libraries for several years is frankly admitted to have been due largely to economic depression and unemployment. It is, therefore, on the whole encouraging to report for the first time in the history of the library a loss in circulation as compared with the previous year. While this is the smallest circulation since 1929, it represents a gain of 4 per cent as compared with that year and of 70 per cent as compared with 1928. It represents a daily average circulation of 955 books.

"The library's reference work is increasingly interesting. Some phases of this work is the cooperation with classes from Slippery Rock State Teachers college, Geneva college and the University of Pittsburgh; work for high school classes and individual students; and help for both men's and women's clubs. For the pictures of costumes and other historical data for the pageant celebrating the 100th anniversary of free public schools in Pennsylvania, the library resources were used.

"Good use has also been made of the reader's counselor service offered by the state library. Anyone will be sent on request, a list of books in the state library on any subject which interests him. Some of them are found to be in the local library and others may be borrowed for him by the local library at the cost of postage.

"A great improvement was made at South Side branch by moving to the new location at 1214 South Mill street on the first floor. The additional space and better light and heat are appreciated by the patrons and the branch staff.

"Since May a group of those interested in poetry has held monthly meetings for reading, writing and criticism.

"The cooperation of the board of trustees with the federal program resulted in some work for carpenters and painters and provided the main library and East Side branch with additional shelving, moved the South Side branch to its new quarters and built more shelves. Beginning December 10, 'white collar' work in the form of recasing and mending books, has resulted in the return of a gratifying number of books to circulation.

"The library is grateful to its many donors. A notable gift was received in November from the Lawrence County Federation of Women's clubs in the 'Talking Book', an electric phonograph for the use of the blind. The records for it are furnished by the Library of Congress and reach this library through Carnegie library of Pittsburgh. The attendance of blind persons has varied from one to 11. The Pennsylvania Power company has made a fine contribution to this project by allowing the blind person and his guide to ride the trolley for one fare to and from the library for these readings.

"Another gift was the set of facsimile compositions of Stephen C. Foster by Josiah K. Lilly of Indianapolis.

"The Lawrence County Medical society, the Rotary club, the Business and Professional Women's club, the Baldwin Bible class of Highland U. P. church, St. John's Lutheran church, Trinity Episcopal church, Lawrence chapter D. A. R. and Col. Dan Leasure camp No. 24, U. S. W. V. each contribute a subscription to its representative periodical. Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Simonton gave the library a six-year set of The Minute Man, the national organ of the S. A. R.

"The New Castle News, in addition to giving a subscription to The News, is perennially helpful in sending its reporter and in printing book lists and articles about the library.

"The librarian's sincere appreciation is hereby extended to the board of trustees for its fine aid and support, and to the staff for its loyal and efficient service."

Sabotage Aboard Dirigible Macon Strongly Hinted

Commander R. R. Bottoms, Says Sabotage Might Well Have Been Responsible

(International News Service) LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 14.—"Sabotage might well have been responsible for the difficulties encountered by the Macon and the Akron," Lieut.-Commander R. R. Bottoms, U. S. naval reserve, who is largely responsible for the development of helium gas, said here Wednesday in a defense of lighter-than-air ships.

"There seems to be a peculiar resemblance," he said in an exclusive International News Service interview, "between the disasters. It is not likely that the similar features of the two accidents should be merely coincidences.

"Already it is evident that the enemies of lighter-than-air craft are attempting to make capital of these disasters in order to prevent any further development in this mode of transportation. It would seem that the enormous value of the lighter-than-air craft in military operations are so well recognized by enemies of the United States that they would take almost any chance in their attempt to scuttle further development in this branch of the service."

AROUND CITY HALL

Police chronology for 24 hours ending at 3:30 p. m. February 13, five arrests on charge as follows: violation of parking ordinance 1, suspicion 2 and drunkenness 2.

City Hall was a rather drab place yesterday, as some of the councilmen had to leave the city for an inspection of graders. During the compilation of the budget the superintendent of streets, B. F. Butler, bemoaned the condition of the grader, which is several years old, and he made it plain to his colleagues that a heavier grader was essential to street work here. As the council has gone to inspect one, it looks very much as though the city solons have agreed to buy one.

Since employees of the RWD have commenced work in the office of the city engineer, space has been limited, and it is probable that the tables will have to be shifted about to provide a place where Neil Williams can draw blueprints.

Kitty Jackson, alias "Kansas City", who came here from Atlantic City in September and was taken into custody on a charge of suspicion in connection with the shooting of Mrs. James Mitchell, received a 30 days sentence in the county jail when she faced Mayor Mayne yesterday. It appears that since she has been here the colored woman has not been conforming to the laws of the city.

LUPE VELEZ

On Court House Hill

Judge James A. Chambers will hold court on Friday to hear the case of the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company against George L. Smith. It is the first case of the kind brought in the local courts under the deficiency judgment act of February 15th, 1934, and is to determine the amount of a deficiency judgment to which the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company is entitled following the sale of a part of Smith's property.

A commission as Notary Public for Attorney George W. Muse, has been placed on record at the register and recorder's office.

Decision by Judge Harry C. James, of Bedford, is of interest locally as it involves the liability of a man out of work to pay alimony. The defendant in the case admitted that he had not paid his wife under a non-support order, but claimed that it was impossible for him to pay when out of work. The judge held that his excuse was good, and ruled that he need not pay the $12 per month stipulated in the order until he secured employment. The case is identical with one which was before Judge R. L. Hildebrand last week in which Judge Hildebrand took a similar view. Under the law a man can be locked up for failure to pay his wife the amount ordered by court, but it would appear that it is a much more practical plan to allow him his freedom in order that he may have a chance to get work. The only drawback is that the man may not be making an honest effort to get work, but where he does, it is evident that the course pursued by Judge Hildebrand and Judge James is the most logical. It no doubt works a hardship on wives and children but if a man makes an honest effort and cannot find work, he is doing all that can be expected of him.

County Commissioners with the solicitor, William McElwee, Jr. this morning began a survey of all the tax books of the county, with the end in view of ascertaining just how much property the county holds by reason of former tax sales. As long as this property remains on the books in the name of the county commissioners, there is no income from taxes on it. The idea of the survey is to get a list of the property, advertise it and sell it, in order that it may be placed back on the productive tax list. There has been no recent sales of property for taxes and the survey will include sales made in years gone by, and in which there has been no redemption. Under the law when unseated land is not redeemed inside of five years, the commissioners hold a good title to it on a tax sale. The law governing seated land, or that which has been improved with buildings, is two years.

However, it is not the intention of the county commissioners to hold the land of anybody who is willing to redeem it by the payment of the back taxes. It would be clearly understood that the survey does not pertain to back taxes which are simply filed, but to actual sales that have been made to the county commissioners in years past.

The first township taken up this morning was that of Union. Joseph McLaughlin assessor for that township, was present to assist. The survey embraces considerable work as it is necessary to go back over the assessments for years. This morning it went back to 1916 on the Union township books. The property held by tax sale by the county, is stamped in red ink as belonging to the county. A check up must be made to determine if the owner had sold it to any one else who might be responsible for the taxes, and also to determine if there has been any double assessment. It is proposed to go over all the books of the county in the investigation.

Spectators at rehearsals insist it is the best thing the Y. W. has done since it inaugurated its pleasant custom of presenting a musical each winter.

The cast this year numbers about 400, with a long list of principal characters. In the chorus will be found a wealth of pulchritude and tuneful melodies. The two acts are fast and colorful, with enough comedy sprinkled in to season the entire confection.

The play is directed by Ruth Iona Martin and William Kay Martin, and the cast represents the best there is in the field of amateur the-

Los Angeles May Get Service Call

May Recondition Los Angeles For Naval Training Purposes, Is Report

(International News Service)

LAKEHURST, N. J., Feb. 14.—The virtually forgotten naval dirigible Los Angeles, most graceful of all America's sky queens, rests snugly in the giant navy docks here, reconditioned but without a flying commission.

A sworn believer in lighter-than-air craft, Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, veteran blimp skipper and survivor of the Shenandoah disaster, was unshaken in his hope that the Los Angeles may be reconditioned for training flights to replace the lost Macon. It was Commander Rosendahl, now in charge of the practically deserted base here, who got permission to put the navy's only remaining dirigible into shape for experimental purposes.

Instruments are being installed now for a year-long test of the weather's effect on the Los Angeles as it rests tethered to a low submooring mast outside the dock.

Referring to the rescue of 81 of the Macon's crew of 83, Commander Rosendahl said: "That's a wonderful record."

TO THE LABOR BOARD

Butler, Pa., February 9, 1935

Mr. Ernest Dunbar, Mediator
Regional Labor Board
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Yesterday you called on Mr. Prior at the garage of The Prior Oil Company and notified the company that Local No. 1060 Automotive Mechanics Lodge, Pittsburgh, had placed the mediation of the strike of the three shop foremen and three mechanics, which is now in progress at The Prior Oil Company's garage in your hands. We enclose a carbon copy of our letter addressed to Local No. 1060 Automotive Mechanics Lodge in answer to their letter and demands.

This is to notify you of our willingness to meet you at our office by appointment to negotiate the settlement of this strike, on the distinct understanding that such acceptance and such proposed conferences will in no manner waive any of our rights and privileges at law, or under the N.R.A.

We respectfully ask for three or four days delay to enable us to secure from Washington the official N. R. A. releases governing wages and hour provisions of "service trade codes in small towns" as set out in release No. 5188, executive order No. 6683 and signed by the President of the United States, exempting such small businesses in cities of less than twenty-five hundred population.

Yours truly,
Attorneys for The Prior Oil Company.

LETTER TO UNION

February 9, 1935.

Mr. W. L. Blake,
Secretary Automotive Mechanics Lodge
605 Aronson Building,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Sir:

Yesterday the directors of The Prior Oil Company, who operate a Garage Service Station at Portersville, Pennsylvania, placed negotiations with the Union entirely in our hands.

The facts are that the president of The Prior Oil Company upon receiving the above letter, the delivery of which was somewhat delayed due to incorrect address, immediately got in touch with the mechanic employees at Portersville and told them that he would be glad in accordance with your invitation to meet the committee of employees and your officers in a conference within a week at the Nixon Hotel, Butler, Pennsylvania, preferably at a dinner engagement to be paid for by Mr. Prior. Such an acceptance was made known in a conference between Mr. Prior and Mr. Johnson and Mr. Harold Robinson, day foreman now on strike. This conference was held on Thursday, February 7, 1935, at eleven A. M.; however at eight P. M. E. D. Johnson, manager of the station that all six men were on strike, effective at once, without the usual notice from the Union, and entirely foreign to the spirit of your letter and with the understanding with Mr. Robinson as above outlined.

On the following afternoon Mr. Ernest C. Dunbar, Regional Labor Board Mediator from Pittsburgh called upon The Prior Oil Company at Portersville at three P. M. and notified the company that the settlement of the strike had been placed by the Union in the hands of the Regional Labor Board, and that he was there for the purpose of mediating the strike.

For your information, The Prior Oil Company is a Pennsylvania Corporation, empowered by its charter to operate a Garage Service Station. Its charter does not allow it to engage in the trucking business. It is located at the little village of Portersville, forty miles north of Pittsburgh. The company has no branches.

We are today writing the Regional Labor Board at Pittsburgh to arrange with them for a conference at our office in Butler, Pennsylvania, and hope that a speedy settlement of this strike can be reached. We are enclosing a copy of our letter of acceptance addressed to the Regional Labor Board. You have appealed to the provisions of the National Recovery Act, and naturally the question of the application of that Act to the issues of this strike will be given first consideration by us.

Yours sincerely,
Attorneys for The Prior Oil Company.

We Quote Sections from Contract Submitted:

"An employee who has been in the service of the company thirty days shall not be dismissed for incompetency, neither shall an employee be discharged for any cause without first being given an investigation."

"Three days absence without notice shall be deemed sufficient cause for dismissal, providing employee fails to show satisfactory cause for such absence."

"The work week shall be five consecutive eight-hour days, between Sunday 12:00 o'clock midnight and Saturday 12:00 o'clock midnight."

Scout Cole's Winning Essay Starts Run Today

EDITOR'S NOTE: The essay submitted by Robert Cole, member of Boy Scout Troop V-37, was chosen by judges as the best of a group entered in an essay writing contest on "Cubbing" which scout authorities have just closed. Cole's essay will be printed in six installments, commencing tonight and continuing in each Thursday's issue for the next five weeks.

"CUBBING AND THE CUB PACK"

"Junior, Junior come into the house and get washed up for dinner," shouted Mrs. Winston to her son who was playing out in the street. When Junior walked into the house his mother asked him why he played out in the street by himself instead of playing with the other boys and she told him it was dangerous in the streets. Junior replied, "Well, the boys that live around me are older and don't want me around because they think I'm too small and I don't have any fund in the yard because I am tired of my toys and I like to play in the street in dirt."

"We'll see what we can do for your troubles," said Mrs. Winston. Mr. Winston came home and they ate supper without anything mentioned about Junior until he had gone to bed. Then Mrs. Winston began: "John, we must do something about Junior playing in the street by himself. I am afraid that he is going to get run over by an automobile and he says that the other boys let him play with them. I don't know what to do with him."

"Why don't you send him to the scout troop on the next block. That will give him something to do to occupy his mind," put in Mr. Winston.

When Tuesday night came around Junior was off to his scout meeting. At the meeting he had a wonderful time with his friends playing games before the meeting took up. He enjoyed watching the other boys passing various tests. When the scouts went into their different patrol corners the scoutmaster came over to Junior and asked:

"Do you wish to join our troop?"

"Yes," replied Junior.

Mr. Winston ascended the stairs to the scout office. Upon entering the scout office he confronted the scout executive, introduced himself and began his story saying, "I have a son nine years old that has no one to play with. He went to a scout meeting last night but they told him that he was too young to join. He likes scouting very much so I thought that I would drop in and see if there wasn't an organization for younger boys. Mrs. Winston says that he plays in the street and she is afraid that he will get run over by cars. What he needs is something to occupy his mind and to work with his hands so that he will stay in his own yard."

"Well," said Mr. Hartman, as that is the executive's name, "we have just the thing for boys of that age from nine to 11 years old. But not many have been started in this town as yet because this is a new organization, but I believe that it will help you in solving the problem with your boy.

"The boys instead of being called scouts are called Cubs. In other cities this Cub movement has been very successful."

"How would one go about starting a cub pack, as you call it?"

"By going to your nearest troop sponsors and talking to them about it. I am sure that they will go with you on this plan," replied Mr. Hartman. "I will go with you to the troop committee to talk to them. When we get them to go along with us it won't be hard to get the boys," added Mr. Hartman.

"Well, thanks for the information concerning this, and I will go see those troop committeemen as soon as possible."

"After trying various ideas for keeping artificial flowers in a shallow vase," writes a reader, "we finally twisted the stems together and attached a lead dress weight, by slipping stem through hole in weight, to several of the flowers (the number and size of weight depending on the size of the flowers). This worked beautifully and keeps our flowers arranged just the way we want them."

WATCH KIDNEYS SAME AS BOWELS

Wash Out Your 79,200 Feet of Kidney Tubes. Your bowels contain only 27 feet of intestine, yet the kidneys contain nearly 10 million tiny tubes or filters which would measure 79,200 feet if laid end to end. Therefore, it is just as important to watch the kidneys as the bowels. Kidneys are working all the time and are Nature's chief way of taking the acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Healthy persons pass 3 pints a day thru the bladder which contains nearly 4 pounds of waste matter. If you pass less than this amount, your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes may be clogged with poisonous waste. This is the danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up at night, hiccups, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness. Kidneys should be watched closely and need cleaning out the same as bowels. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out your 79,200 feet of kidney tubes. But don't take chances with strong drugs and so-called "kidney cures" which claim to fix you up in 15 minutes. Your common sense will tell you that this is impossible. Treatments of this nature may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS, the old reliable relief that contains no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-McMillan Co.

Beaver Falls Here Friday In Crucial Battle

New Castle Will Try To Regain Top Of League By Upsetting Beaver Falls

CAN DEADLOCK RACE ON FRIDAY

HOPE OF regaining the top of Section Three are entertained by the New Castle high school basketball team today with the big obstacle being the Beaver Falls high school team. The game will be played at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Garden on February 22. Beaver Falls is six feet, seven and a half inches tall and that is going up in fistiana. Big Primo is six feet, six and one half inches and that's going a bit skyward too.

The doors of Washington high will be opened at 6:30 o'clock Friday night to take care of the big crowd that will no doubt witness the schoolboy battle. The Castles Reserve will play the Beaver Falls Reserve in the preliminary game at 7:15 o'clock.

Beaver Falls Strong
Beaver Falls will come here with a determination to settle the supremacy once and for all, and by a victory can clinch the championship with the possibility of winning their final game. New Castle will have to upset Butler high at Butler if they win from Beaver Falls here.

New Castle defeated the Beaver Falls high team at the valley court earlier in the season, and expect to turn the trick again Friday night, but this may be a lot harder to do to this time, even on the New Castle court. Coach Joy McGinness will have his Orange and Black passers all set for the biggest game of the season here.

Expect Big Crowd
Faculty Manager Ralph H. Gardner is making arrangements to take care of the largest crowd in the game since last year. Interest in the game is at fever heat in both towns.

You had better call 1388 or 630 at Senior high and reserve your tickets for the game tomorrow night as they go like hotcakes when the window is opened. Tickets reserved on the telephone will be held until 8 o'clock and will then be placed on sale again.

TEACHERS UNABLE TO CHECK TITANS

(Special To The News.)
ERIE, Pa., Feb. 14.—Westminster's towering band of Titans handed the Edinboro Teachers College basketball team the first defeat of the year last night and the score was 54 to 23. The Teachers never had a look in with the Lawthermen. Pete Leyshock celebrated his return to the Westminster lineup after an extended ineligibility by getting 16 points to lead the scorers with Bennett having 13 points and Sweeney having 11 points.

The collegians started out with a determination and at the end of the first half had piled up a lead of 24 to 13. In the second half the Westminster continued their attack with 30 more points while the Teachers were held to 10 points.

Holland was the best in the lineup of the Edinboro with nine of the points. Simon also played a fine game. The Westminster team clicked nicely with Leyshock back in the fold.

Boxing Show Proves Success

Frankie Kara Wins Over Mickey Jarzy In Three Rounds

CUSTY MORINI DEFEATS BERNETT

Fifteen hundred fans gathered at the Cathedral last night to witness the first amateur boxing show held in the auditorium. Not only did they conduct themselves in a very orderly manner but each of the battlers on the calendar and there were 18, performed up to to advance notice.

In fact the boxers were as evenly matched last night as they were at Taggart field last August and every contest was a battle from the bell until the contest terminated. Some of the best amateurs of eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania met each other.

The show was sponsored by John F. Haven, chief of police, and Mayor Charles B. Mayne was the announcer. The receipts will be used to purchase equipment for the police. All of the matches were made by Ed. Fritz, Sports Editor of The News. B. J. Blom represented the State Athletic commission.

There were three referees, four judges and one timekeeper, the former being George Chip, Tom McMahon and Tommy Jones. The judges were Harry Steiner, Chauncey Davis, Billy Fazzone and Lou Brady. The fights got under way promptly on time and the first was between locally trained boxers.

In this setto Frankie Massa of Koppel fought Frankie Rachig of Bessemer. Each weighed 145 pounds and after three rounds Massa was declared the winner. It was a taser bout and the fans got their fill of action in the next scrap.

In this bout Harold Detman of Cleveland, boxed Bill Thunderwhite, also of Cleveland, in the 155-pound class. Referee George Chip stopped the contest after two minutes and fifty-five seconds of the third round and awarded Detman a technical knockout.

Adam Wins Again
Another slambang event was between Chuck Arnett, West Pittsburg, and Tony Adamo, this city, in the 145-pound class. Heavy punching on the part of both fighters pleased the large crowd. Adamo was awarded the decision.

Two battlers who scored a decided hit with the fans last night were Andy Czar and Nick Kordic, both of Cleveland, who mixed in the fourth affair of the night. In the initial round, Czar's hefty left jab sent Kordic down for a six count.

The second chapter saw Kordic rock Czar with a volley of lefts and rights which nearly upset Czar, who took a count. Czar came back strong to win the decision which was close. They are a pair of 150-pound knockouts.

Atkinson Also Wins
Ray Atkinson of Ellwood City annexed another triumph in the sixth bout, when he was declared the winner over Jack Vergella of Butler, in one of the most interesting contests on the card.

From start to finish the two fighters thrilled the fans. In the second, Vergella's nose commenced to bleed. So anxious was the Ellwood City battler to score a knockout, that he narrowly missed hitting referee Jones. Atkinson and Vergella are in the 150 pound class.

One contest which will be remembered for some time to come was the eighth event between Daro Zelarino of Butler and Paul Kraynak of Ellwood City, in the 160-pound class. The fans saw seven minutes of honest to goodness fighting.

decision from Mickey Jarzy of Cleveland. It was a fine scrap. Mayor Mayne thanked the fans for their co-operation in helping to put the boxing show over. The 1,500 fans filled out of the big Cathedral, happy that they could witness a good show in such a fine place.

Fight Summary

First Bout
Frankie Rachig, Bessemer, vs. Frankie Massa, Koppel. One hundred forty-five pound class. Massa won, decision.

Second Bout
Harold Detman, Cleveland, O., vs. Bill Thunderwhite, Cleveland, O. One hundred fifty-five pound class. Detman scored technical knockout in third round.

Third Bout

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAKER, JR.

LISTEN TO THIS
Eddie Rosen, sophomore basketball forward at Michigan State, carries a bed cester as a good luck piece. Only five of Ohio State university's 205 freshmen football players have been lost through ineligibility. German women have become so enthusiastic about field hockey that more than 24,000 players now are listed in the association governing the sport. The largest crowd of the National hockey league season, 17,500 spectators, watched the New York Rangers defeat the Chicago Blackhawks, 2 to 1, in the Windy City last Sunday night. Ray Steele, heavyweight wrestler whose real name is Pete Sauer, is an uncle of George Sauer, all-American fullback at Nebraska in 1933. Abe Attel always chewed gum when he was engaged in a fight.

No less than five former Marquette university athletes are making good in big-time hockey circles. The list includes: Donnie McFadyen, Chicago Blackhawks; Roger Jenkins, Montreal Les Canadiens; Ivy Frew, St. Louis Eagles; and Pudge MacKenzie and Earl Thomson, Kansas City Rangers. Six-day bike riders are paid a daily guarantee ranging from $100 to $1,000 per man, depending upon how good he is. Glino Garibaldi, Italian wrestling star, was an all-around athlete at the University of Trieste, Italy a few years ago. At one of the Detroit golf clubs last year Lloyd (Maxie) Allen made a hole-in-one that didn't count. He teed off on the fourteenth and the ball rolled into the cup on the eighteenth green, a hooked drive traveling a little more than 200 yards.

When Bill Bonthron entered Princeton his ambition was to be a football star, but after the coaches saw him turn he shifted Bill to track for keeps. Harness racing is developing into a world-wide sport. Shanghai, China, has established a track for trotters. Thousands of fans paid $50 a seat to see the second Dempsey-Tunney fight, held in Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927. Setting his goal at 500 points, Capt. Ray Morstadt is out to establish an all-time scoring mark in his three-year career on the Marquette university basketball team. The 200-pound Hilltop forward gathered 163 points as a sophomore, 162 last season and 137 in the first 13 games this winter for a total of 462. There are five men in which he must score 38 points.

Mechanical starting devices for horse racing, the sliding seat used in rowing, and the totalization system of betting originated in Australia. Jack Kearns admitted in a court action last November that more than $2,000,000 has passed through his hands since he became a manager of boxers. The four grappling Duseks: Rudy, Emil, Ernie, and Joe, are all better-than-average wrestlers. Gust Kupka, Cleveland pro, used the tip of the Washington Monument for a tee and drove a ball into a 60-mile gale of wind. At Chicago, Ill., July 17, 1933, Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris, world chess champion, played the second game while blindfolded, in the Hall of States at the World's Fair. His score showed 19 victories, 3 draws, and 4 losses.

The average child's vocabulary at one year is three words, at two about 200, and at three, about 800.

Bessemer, Shenango And New Wilmington Fighting Hard For Floor Championship

Bessemer, Shenango and New Wilmington are still in the thick of the championship fight in the Lawrence county high school basketball fight. The games to be played Friday night may have a decided bearing upon the ultimate standing. In the girls league the Bessemer and East Brook girls are tied for the lead, with Shenango girls one game back of the leaders.

Shenango high boys will play at Union high Friday night and should take this game in stride over the Unionites, unless the Coach Davey Boyd passers decide to snap out of the slump they have been in all year and play the game as they are capable of doing. Coach Ed. Raney has the East New Castle team all polished up and rarin' to go Friday night.

Bessemer high will be idle Friday night. New Wilmington will play at Mt. Jackson and should win this one over the Spearnmen, having taken the Mt. Jacksons into camp at New Wilmington earlier in the year. East Brook high will journey to Wampum tomorrow night for an engagement. Duquesne Bans Jimmy Murphy

Star Duke Guard Is Dropped From Floor Squad For Ineligibility

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 14.—Duquesne university's campus breathed easier today after the school's athletic council decided to drop Jimmy Murphy, star guard, from the cage squad, and also ordered boxing dropped from its list of varsity sports.

School authorities said the dropping of boxing was done at this time due to a belief that the sport was too hazardous for collegians. They added that original plans were to drop the sport at the end of the season, but the withdrawal of John Napolitan as ring mentor brought the premature decision to act now.

The dropping of Murphy was based on his failure to inform school authorities of his attendance at LaSalle college, Philadelphia, last year.

There is considerable rivalry between the two teams and a hotly contested game will no doubt result. The lineups of both teams are dotted with former New Castle high stars. The Humberts will meet the National Pants team in the preliminary game at 7 o'clock. Carl Gennock, well known basketball star, will referee the main game.

Golf Leaguers To Gather Next Week

News And Blair Strip Steel Teams Will Provide Program For Evening

Another splendid party is being arranged for the golfers of the city for next Tuesday evening, when the Blair Strip Steel and News teams will be hosts and will provide a program of entertainment for the evening, at the Municipal Course club house.

This is the second party of the season, preliminary to the organization of the league for the coming year, and the boys from The News and Blair Strip Steel plant realize they will have to step some to equal the party put on by the Shenango Tin Workers three weeks ago.

Tickets have been placed in the hands of the various team captains for this party, and a large attendance is assured.

The new arrangement of the auditorium at the Muncy Cothe has made it possible to accommodate more people. This party is not for the golfers of the city league alone, but for all golfers of the city.

Rails Help Firm Today's Market

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A better tone in the rails helped firm the stock market today and offset further pressure on the utilities.

Union Pacific went back to par and Atchison rose nearly a point as the carriers strengthened from their recent weakness.

Columbia Gas sold at a new low in the utilities and U. G. I. was pressed for sale at its 1934-35 low. Steel shares were firmer.

Motors were little better than steady. Chrysler was slightly higher part of the time. Chemical issues ruled around the previous close, with dealings light.

Oils were quiet and steady, and farm implement and mail order stocks did little. Mining shares were neglected. National Dairy Products ran into further demand in the food division. Liggett and Myers was down in the tobaccos.

Grains were lower in commodities, while bonds moved in a narrow range. Gold bloc currencies were easier against the dollar.

Only Photograph Ever Made of U. S. Supreme Court in Session

Action of the Supreme Court of the United States on the gold policy of the New Deal gives historic interest to this, the only photograph ever made of the highest court in the land while it was actually in session. The picture, made by Dr. Erich Salomon, German photographer, and reproduced by Central Press by permission of Fortune, shows (left to right) Justices Roberts, Butler, Brandeis, Van Devanter, Hughes, Sutherland, Stone and Cardozo listening to an argument. Justice McReynolds was absent when the photo was made. Unseen in the picture is the gold eagle which glares down on the courtroom. It is seen in closeup, showing its resemblance to the Blue Eagle of the New Deal.

Relief Projects In State Are Hit By Fund Shortage

State Director Orders Many Projects Shut Down Throughout State

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Feb. 14.—Robert L. Johnson, state relief director, today issued orders to shut down works relief projects throughout the state because of lack of relief funds. Johnson said the federal government had allocated another $2,500,000 to Pennsylvania but this was enough only to meet direct relief until the end of the week. Additional money is expected by Johnson next week.

"There is a general tapering off," Johnson said. "We expect to know more about the money situation in the next six or eight weeks. For the present, we are stopping projects that can be discontinued with the least hardship."

The check for $2,500,000 was received by Gov. George H. Earle this morning. It brought the total federal funds for February which have been allocated to Pennsylvania to $12,250,000.

Orders to shut down works projects have been going out for the last two days, Johnson revealed and only those projects that cannot be discontinued are exempted, Johnson said. Johnson said he did not know the number of men affected by the order.

Bruno Sobs Out He Is Innocent

HAUPTMANN'S STEEL NERVE IS SHAKEN

By JOHN A. CLEMENTS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

JAIL, FLEMINGTON, Feb. 14.—Before my God, Mr. Reilly, before my mother and my wife and baby—I am innocent of this.

It is Bruno Richard Hauptmann, almost in collapse and half on his knees, clinging to the cold steel bars of his bull pen cage, talking, pouring out his ravaged soul to his burly chief of counsel.

Reilly, himself shaken as he has never been moved in his more than a quarter of a century of criminal practice, went to see his client.

A bare half hour before Hauptmann had stood stiffly erect between two vigilant guards and listened to Justice Trenchard pronounce his doom. In measured speech the veteran jurist specified the method and the time, almost to the day, that the man before him must go to his maker.

Hauptmann took it standing up. He glanced once at his wife, hesitated a second, and marched to his cell. He slumped on his cot, buried his face in his hands and for the first time since his arrival in Flemington sobbed—to the wonderment of astonished guards.

Says He Told Truth

"My God! My God!" he sobbed. "What have they done to me? How could they do it—How could they believe that I ever had anything to do with this? My God, Mr. Reilly, I told the truth. My Annie told me the truth. Are they trying to make me say I did it? Are they making me the man they want to make me?"

Reilly, the veteran of nearly 2,000 homicide cases, could give him no answer. For one of the few times in his long career he was speechless.

"Mr. Reilly, I cannot tell you any more tonight than I did when you came here first. I do not know more, I cannot tell you any more. He asked me everything he could think of and I told him all I knew. Why did they not believe me? I told you everything. What can I do? Will you tell Annie, please, Mr. Reilly, that I want to see her?"

"Yes, Richard, I will. We have only started to fight," Reilly replied and turned quickly and left the cell of the man for whom he had fought for six gruelling weeks. Reilly was visibly shaken and went directly to his quarters in a local home.

A half hour later C. Lloyd Fisher, youthful, forceful and scrappy local attorney for Hauptmann, called on him. The same cold fury at the world that has shone from the peculiar blue eyes of the former machine gunner again gripped him. He no longer was eloquent—no longer passionate in his almost hysterical denials. He was calm and angry at the world.

For 15 minutes Hauptmann talked. He was not to be stopped. He was on his way to death—to oblivion—and he wanted to talk.

When he finished Fisher gave him the meager comfort that he could and silently left his cell. Still Hauptmann talked.

"Will they let Annie see me tomorrow? Can't the sheriff let her in tomorrow morning? How does she feel? Is the baby all right? Do you know when they will take me away? Can I see her in the other jail?"

Guards, a greatly augmented guard, stood silently by. They were ordered not to talk.

Hauptmann, the iron man, the unbreakable—had broken.

Here's One To Make You Scratch Head

Man Weds Daughter Of Sons
Wife And Becomes Own
Step-Son-In Law

SUTTON, W. Va., Feb. 14.—Here is a complicated case of relationship. Coe Jenkins, a farmer of the Little Birch community of Braxton county, married a daughter of his daughter-in-law, and because the stepson-in-law of his own son, and in time the great-grandfather of his own child.

It all happened without the breaking of any laws against the marriage of close blood relations. Alva Jenkins, the son, is married to the former Mrs. Emory Riffle. Mrs. Jenkins has from her first marriage a daughter whom Coe Jenkins took as his second wife. Alva Jenkins thus became stepson-in-law to his stepdaughter, and step-father-in-law to his own father.

A daughter was born to Coe Jenkins and his second wife, making Alva step-great-grandfather of his own child, and Alva, besides being step-grandfather, is a half-brother of the child of his father.

Mother Of Bruno Hauptmann Sends Roosevelt Appeal

(International News Service)
KAMENZ, Germany, Feb. 14.—A letter asking mercy for Bruno Richard Hauptmann was sent to President Roosevelt today by the condemned man's mother, Frau Paulina Hauptmann.

Besieged by an army of newspapermen in her little cottage here, Frau Hauptmann acceded to the suggestion of one of them that she write the chief executive.

In the missive, which she promptly posted, Frau Hauptmann pleaded for a milder sentence, citing her poverty, old age and certainty of her son's innocence.

"I asked the president," Frau Hauptmann said, "to please not consider my son's crimes in Germany in too grave a light."

"I told him he had been excited by the war, and that he was young and long without a job."

"I asked him to consider my old age and to remember that I lost two sons in the war. I told him I was a widow, poor and lonely, and that the guilt of my son was not clearly established."

"Perhaps he can do something to obtain a milder sentence. My son should not die."

Temperance Rally Attracts Good Crowd

Statement On Repeal Facts Is Presented By Dr. F. Scott
McBride Wednesday

The Second United Presbyterian church was the scene of a Temperance Rally Wednesday evening when the four United Presbyterian congregations joined in a meeting.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, was the main speaker and he took the repeal as the basis of his address, saying that Repeal has already been proven as the worst failure in a century of dealing with liquor problems.

He said "There are seven counts in the indictment against the present Liquor program: 1. No method of control has proved effective or successful; 2. There is a decided increase in drinking and drunkenness; 3. The saloon is back with all promises shamefully broken. 4. The boot-legalizer has stayed and is prospering unabated, smoke screened by the legalized traffic. 5. The promise to protect dry territory has been absolutely ignored. 6. The cocktail hour and other social drinking custom has counted drinking among young people and women. 7. A colossal campaign of alcohol beverage advertising has expanded the market and created a new crop of drinkers."

"Repeal has failed to remedy a single liquor evil and has contributed no benefits whatsoever to compensate for the damage and deaths it has caused."

"Repeal returns will not pay for relief funds spent for liquor and the public costs of caring for and peal drinking results. If the government were compelled to pay for the loss of life and property caused by legalized repeal intoxicants, as it rightfully should, the economic folly would be still more apparent."

At conclusion of his address a pageant "The Prisoner at the Bar" brought the lesson home more forcibly. Dr. W. McGeary, Pittsburgh, who had charge of the Western Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon league, took the part of the prisoner.
